Named Deputy

By The Canadian Press

Allied submarines were officially credited today with sinking a 1,100-ton Japanese cruiser and two merchant ships totalling 15,000 tons in the battle of the South Pacific, while United Nations planes knocked out 14 more Japanese planes in attacks on enemy bases in New Guinea and Timor.

Allied headquarters identified the cruiser as one of the Koko class, built in 1934-35, with six eight-inch guns and a normal crew of 600 men.

On the critical line from front, missionaries left Kinshu today as Japan's furious offensive drew near that strategic city, provisional capital of Chekiang province and rail gateway to Central China.

Chekiang lies below Shanghai on the China east coast, with easy bombing range of Japan.

The main Japanese column, driving down the Chekiang-Kiangsi railway, was reported only 30 miles from Kinshu, smashing heavily at Chinese lines with strong aerial support.

Nazi Cruiser Again Runs Blockade

It was reported in London today that the heavy Nazi cruiser, Prinz Eugen, had again run a sea blockade after being now at the German port of Kiel. It had been at Tromsø, Norway. The Prinz Eugen had previously accompanied Nazi battleships in their dash through the English Channel from Brest to Germany.

DUCE SEEKS SOME SUCCESS

Italy May Invade Corsica

(BUP)—Dispatches from Rome today that Benito Mussolini, humiliated by Italy's succession of defeats and believing it necessary to present some success to his hungry, war-weary people, might soon attack French Corsica.

The reports were based on Mussolini's recent visit to Sardinia, separated by a narrow strait from Corsica, and the meeting of the Fascist council which he called immediately on his return.

Berne quoted Italian newspapers that great decisions might result from this meeting, concerning a plan to occupy Corsica.

Vichy newspapers played up a statement in the Mauthausen prisoner-of-war camp, that Sardinia might be the base of initiatives we will take at the opportune moment in different directions dictated by the supreme interests of the nation.

A United Press Vichy dispatch outlined that Sardinia, between the French and African Tunisia, and that the only directions were to the north and south.

Corsica, however, is within easy striking distance while any attack on Tunisia would come more lightly from Italian Libya which adjoins it on the east. Furthermore, Tunisia is strongly defended by French colonial forces.

It was noted that Adm. Jean Francisca, Dardanelles commander in chief of Vichy armed forces, was in Naples, having been in the Mediterranean for several days.

France has been afraid Vichy would make a deal with Germany that would thwart Italy's ambition to take territories from weakened French colonial forces.

Reports to the Greek government in exile said the German attacks hit the line in at least five places and blew up a German troop train at Drama.

The reports said more than 200 Nazis were killed in the attacks.

Will Pool Knowledge Of Allies

By NORMAN MACLEOD
OTTAWA, May 22.—(BUP)—A combined committee on air training in North America was set up by the operations field of the United Nations conference, it was announced today as the delegates ended their final plenary session.

Formation of the committee, which will function as a permanent secretariat for the interchange of air information between the democracies, was disclosed by the Canadian Air Minister, C. G. Power, captain H. H. Balfour, representing the United Kingdom, and Major General J. H. K. Noyes, of the United States.

It was stated that the committee would achieve any progress towards the clearing house whereby vital experience and information from the operations field of the United Nations partners may be transferred, it was said, to the training fields of all the other partners.

Setting up this new and permanent consultative machinery, the committee was being formed in a deliberate and far-reaching training of the conference leaders.

Asked whether the discussion had achieved any progress towards the ideal of a common pool of United Nations air crews, Yount gave a definite negative.

"We are all training our own air crew," he said, "but we are continuing to do so."

"It is not our idea that any greater exchange of information is to be obtained by indiscriminate mixing of air crews," he said, "but that airmen do the best job of training under the flags of their respective countries."

Yount stated, however, that the United Nations air force is being standardized so that airman from one country could be transferred to another, into the forces of one of their allies, without needing more than a brief refresher course.

Power, the United Nations air force, is being standardized so that airman from one country could be transferred to another, into the forces of one of their allies, without needing more than a brief refresher course.

ALL HIGHLY SATISFIED
All parties to the conference expressed themselves as highly satisfied with its results, which were even more valuable, they said, than the concrete and tangible movement of the air force in the night might indicate.

It was indicated that the United Nations air force is being standardized so that airman from one country could be transferred to another, into the forces of one of their allies, without needing more than a brief refresher course.

Yount and Balfour, who had a discussion, had been directed to the United Nations air force, which was being standardized so that airman from one country could be transferred to another, into the forces of one of their allies, without needing more than a brief refresher course.

Balfour was asked, "Are you satisfied that the United Nations air force is being standardized so that airman from one country could be transferred to another, into the forces of one of their allies, without needing more than a brief refresher course?"

"We have never doubted that we would do that eventually," he replied, adding, "We may do it sooner as a result of this conference."

The United Nations air training conference is being conducted in London, and is being attended by representatives of the United Nations air force, which is being standardized so that airman from one country could be transferred to another, into the forces of one of their allies, without needing more than a brief refresher course.

The "Airdrome"

From Edmonton and the surrounding country 5,641 young men have joined the C.A.F. since war was declared. What has been going on here has been going on all over the Dominion. It is not even claimed that this district has made a record in the matter of enlistments, though this may well be. And there is no sign of a slackening of the pace. The Air Minister said the British Empire is in the grip of the troubles in a fight for six months at least.

For whatever reason, aviation appeal to the youth of Canada more than it does to the youth of many other countries. The outlook is that enlistments will not only continue at the present rate but will increase, though population size definite bounds to the number of young men will be available. While the force now numbers more than 100,000, this population limit has not been approached and an ultimate force of three times the size is easily possible. The number of the schools has as yet been the only limit to the numbers in training.

When President Roosevelt referred to Canada as the "arsenal of democracy," he was thinking of the commonwealth Air Training system. The term is not inappropriate also to the remarkable growth of the R.C.A.F.

Supply Control

One control leads to another. Canadian cattle have been shipped to the United States in such numbers that a beef shortage was reported from some eastern markets. With a ceiling on beef prices in Canada, the U.S. market became attractive, and the quarterly quota allowed entry and the United States filled up ahead of time.

To relieve the beef scarcity, a control organization is being set up by the Price and Trade Board. This organization will buy export cattle at the prices which could be obtained in the United States, and divert these to home markets, if and when such action becomes necessary. The producers will thus receive the prices they would have secured had their animals gone across the border. The consumer will be assured a sufficient supply of beef without the price ceiling being justified.

"Fact behind the news" of course is that the Dominion will have to make up any difference between domestic cattle prices and the prices for cattle which could be exported. Which are kept for the home market. This will cost the taxpayers something, but only a trifle of the cost of letting "inflation" run into play as the result of scarce beef.

No Safety Anywhere

It was Mannheim's turn this week to be reminded that the western air front stretches across Germany, and that every munitions centre there is a target. It was the 54th raid the city has experienced, and the worst of the series. Two hundred or more R.A.F. bombers took part. As one squadron alone dropped 1,000 bombs, the number on the place while the others showered it with assorted explosive tons, Goebbels will have some trouble convincing the residents that the city is invulnerable" raid and didn't do much damage.

Mannheim has peculiar importance because it is the site of huge munition factories. If Hitler has planned to lose poison gas on the Russians, this is one of the places where it is likely being made—or was. This may have had something to do with the timing of the attack and its severity.

Three R.C.A.F. squadrons were in the raid, and there were Edmonton men in the crews.

Mannheim is far up the Rhine, as well located as any point in western Germany for immunity from air attack. The blasting into it was subjected will again mean plain to munition makers and the general public that there is no such thing as safety in or around any munitions centre in the western half of the Reich, a point that will be particularly impressive because the R.A.F. is striking one centre or another every night that the weather makes flying feasible. This is the only enemy production plant was bombed last night.

The Production War

"Hitler's problem no longer is one of staying ahead of the Allies' war output. Now he has to struggle to keep up with it." This was an aptly expressed opinion of the German press, which was stationed in Berlin until the United States came into the fray sized up the production war in a statement written at London.

Without undue vainglory the summary seems reasonable. The Fuehrer cannot the industrialized area of continental Europe. But outside that area the industrial resources of the world are pitted against him, existing largely in Japan, from which he can get no help. This potential balance on the side of the Allies has been changing into increased production at a rate never before seen anywhere.

And inside the Hitler realm production has not been possible at the maximum, for several reasons. The supply of raw materials there is not without limit, as to variety and quantity. Much of the labor supply is hostile, as proven by the shooting and internment and deportations. In recent months munitions factories in the Reich and the occupied countries have been blown out of existence faster than new ones could be built, while in Allied countries the expansion of plants and output has been practically unhindered by enemy actions with regard to the plebiscite result.

The burning question today is not what Quebec means, but what it intends to do. Quebec has answered very definitely the question which was asked about French-Canada's intentions with regard to the plebiscite result.

Primate Plans People's Charter

Level Inequalities After War

FROM THE DAILY EXPRESS, LONDON

Dr. Temple, Archbishop of Canterbury, has described a five-point People's Charter he is going to work for after the war.

1.—House in which all citizens can bring up a family decently and with dignity and adequate nutrition for every child born in this house.

2.—For people in every class kind of education which will develop their faculties to the full.

3.—Education must be a good deal more varied than it is now.

4.—Adequate leisure for digging extra matter out of books after they are read.

5.—The interests of individual nations must give way, in some matters at least, to those of the wider community—whether the European or the world community of nations.

6.—Universal recognition of the proper time of rest is itself part of efficiency in industry.

7.—The difference between leisure and unemployment is simply a question whether you have got money or not.

8.—A wisdom pool composed of members of every section of the community.

9.—The experience of life in a wage-earning occupation, and the threat of unemployment, the way present, gives one kind of outlook. The relative security of the shareholding type and the professional man gives another.

10.—Limit Interest.

It is only when these outlooks are seen and allowed for that we can find a truly wide-eyed view of the world.

Dr. Temple, who was speaking at Manchester on social justice and economic reconstruction.

There must be, after this war.

And most of this defiance and this planning have been carried out and expressed with sentimentality that is downright English-speaking people in all parts of Canada are saying: "What is the matter with MacKenzie King that he doesn't show us the way out of this 'hell'?"

Up to this time of the plebiscite on April 27, the matter of conscription for overseas war was a subject for adverse comment.

Once, however, the Canadian people had expressed their emphatically in favor of overseas conscription, that policy took on the force of law. To all intents and purposes it became a law, lacking only the formality of a statute.

For it is the majority of the people who make laws. Parliament merely formalizes their decisions.

So those today who talk of this policy of refusing to recognize this policy, which actually, has become a law, and promise to flout it and disobey it, are in the man who flouts the criminal code by committing crime, on the ap-

Anti-Conscription Talk Runs Close To Treason

By HAROLD L. WEIR

Anti-conscription oratory in Quebec has answered very definitely the question which was asked about French-Canada's intentions with regard to the plebiscite result.

The burning question today is not what Quebec means, but what it intends to do. Quebec has answered very definitely the question which was asked about French-Canada's intentions with regard to the plebiscite result.

So those today who talk of this policy of refusing to recognize this policy, which actually, has become a law, and promise to flout it and disobey it, are in the man who flouts the criminal code by committing crime, on the ap-

Even Franco Adherents to Resist Hitler Is New Belief

By WAVERLEY ROOT IN THE MONTREAL STAR

When Wyndham Eric White, First Secretary of the British Embassy in Washington, returned to his post after a six-week tour of the Mediterranean and the Balkans, he announced that an attempted assassination of Spain would be recalled "even by the Franco adherents."

He attributed the fact that British "efforts to promote the independence of Spain and the resistance to Germany have had more success recently than at any time in the past."

The British belief that their appeasement efforts in Spain, under the guidance of British Ambassador Sir Samuel Hoare, of Hoare-Laval peace fame, has had an effect on the political attitude of that country, is the parallel, to the American belief that the appeasement tactics in Vichy have been the reason why France has not become a 100 per cent partner in the Axis.

"Franco adherents" might indeed resist a German entry into Spain, even though Franco resists.

At present, for a base of operations for surface battleships, particularly the line of communications across the Atlantic to the west coast of Africa, from where supplies are trans-shipped, overland to the Near East.

Possibility Number Two is by no means as remote as casual observers may think. In fact, this eventuality is the one which the Spanish troops in Spain are most anxious to see.

Old Testament Story
Editor, Bulletin: Those who loved "old" in the plebiscite and the Old Testament story of an Old Testament war in which certain tribes were expected to fail to do so, to their own condemnation.

The story is to be found in the Book of Judges, chapters 4 and 5. The first portion of the narrative tells how the people willingly offered themselves to voluntary enlistment. The government was the result. The people were commended; they raised all in the cause.

However, God did not fail him. He was preserved. "Lead us not into temptation," said the Lord of Hosts.

Churchill in his recent speech at the House of Commons, God we were preserved. "Lead us not into temptation," said the Lord of Hosts.

The story goes on to tell of the victory of Deborah, who held back. Reuben, abode by the Jordan, failed to cross over to the help of their brethren. The result was a defeat. Deborah, who held back, was commended; they raised all in the cause.

By Jack Guenther

NEW YORK, May 22.—(BUP)—A pair of the most remarkable legs of our time will be displayed publicly for a brief spell tonight when rapid Robert Pastor, the Nijinsky of Saratoga Springs, attempts to demonstrate the finer points of the game, and bunny hug to a most unwilling pupil—an awkward youth with the awkward name of Tami Mauriello.

The event is billed as a heavyweight elimination bout and in a sense this advertisement is true. Pastor is a heavyweight and Mauriello will be eliminated. It will endure no more, and possibly less, than 45 minutes, but many thousands of spectators enthusiastic will come along to sit and stare in open-mouthed wonder. Those legs fascinate 'em.

The legs won't rival those of Marlene Dietrich in the matter of comeliness or allure. They are about as shapely as sausages and as smooth as a railroad track. They are covered with fur that a seal might envy. Yet you can run the gamut from Alaska to Zorina without finding a yet more valuable. Before the summer is out they may be worth $10,000,000.

Snail Gummy Gams

PASTOR is Pastor's legs, of course. They are the gummy game, and though the stocky New York heavyweight bicycled away from Los Angeles five years ago and they are the limped limbs on which he moved for 11 rounds against the champion three years ago. And today they are the same legs which have brought Pastor back to the top when he should be merely a memory.

"I've taken care of them and now they are taking care of me," Pastor told me today as he finished training for Mr. Mauriello. "And I'll tell you something more—these legs will take care of Mr. Joe, too. When we get into the ring this summer I'll beat him because my legs will outlast Mr. Joe's legs. My legs are still strong. His are weakening."

Always an optimist when he speaks of Louis—he is the only man ever given a chance to fight the champion a third time—Pastor didn't talk much about the fight with him, but out for his toughest opponent just doesn't excite his imagination. This bout is just part of a week's work. What makes it different is that it involves a pretty expensive gamble.

Manager Not Worried

CRITUALY, Mauriello has about as much chance as an Annapolis apple whistling "Anchors Aweigh" in the quiet at West Point the day before the Army-Navy game. He just doesn't figure. He is big and awkward and not overly gifted with ability to think on his feet, but he does have that great equalizer—a pretty rugged punch.

Pastor's manager, the leather-throated James J. Johnson, seems unworried. This is a trifle unusual because manager who is risking a $300,000 a year in a $300,000 warm-up should be worried. But Mr. Johnson, who has never been known to be at a loss for a word, had a ready answer. If Pastor can't whip Mauriello, he says, he would be killed by Louis.

Pastor can whip Mauriello and he will, by a margin as wide as Michigan Boulevard. But accidents do happen in a ring and even-check Billy Conn in a kitchen. So it is suspected that Pastor will rely more on his legs against Tami than on his fists. He will walk, foot and two-step like Arthur Murray himself and win nine of the 10 rounds.

Pastor's Legs No Accident

JUST how Pastor's legs manage to stand up is a question which never will be settled along Lammer's Lane. Some members of the mob say they are made of rubber and if ever melted down would reveal material to re-learn every leg in Brooklyn. If there are any lies in Brooklyn, others say they are outfitted with coil springs. Whatever they are, they are wonderful.

They aren't wonderful by accident, however. As Pastor says, he has taken care of them. He has taken care of them by running or skilling no less than seven miles per day for the past five years. Some times he goes as far as 14 miles a day—through the rain, the snow or the ice. Instead of wearing out, the legs have grown spry and bouncier by the year.

It could be that Mauriello—who has knocked out almost 30 men—can land a clincher on the Pastor's chin. But even if he does, I don't think he can win. A good many better men have hit the bullseye before while boxing Pastor, but nobody has ever knocked him down for the count. Nobody. Which is more than even Mr. Joe himself can say, great champion that he is.

"I take care of the legs," Pastor says, "and the legs take care of me."

Woolf To Ride In King's Plate

Hatch's Cossack Post Not Impressive In Final Workout

TORONTO, May 22.—(CP)—Cossack Post Thursday wound up his serious training for the 5000 running of the King's Plate in a blaze of something that distinctly was not glory.

The gelded son of Haytime 2nd out of Kipling Post, always has been noted for his poor showings in workouts, but yesterday he topped them all. He broke last from the gate with a group of thoroughbreds at Woodbine and dropped steadily behind to be timed at 2:18.3 for the half and 1:08.2 for the five furlongs.

His owner, Harry Hatch, was non-committal after the workout but it was almost certain the Post will be among the starters named for the nine-furlong classic, feature of opening day at Woodbine Park here Saturday. The starters will be named Friday.

Cossack Post had been considered until recently a likely contender for the Plate because of his victory in the decoration stakes last fall, but lack of quality in his recent workouts has dropped his stock below that of Mr. R. E. Webster's Bill Giff and Medway stable's Depressor.

Rigorous training for the Plate has been completed and the entries will receive only blow-out-light workouts—before Saturday.

Harry Giddings' Ton to Arc is the only thoroughbred in training for the event to show class comparable to Plate winners of other years—Goldshire in 1937; Rusty Lawless, 1938; Ardworth, 1939; Willie the Kid, 1940; and Budapest, 1941.

Observers figure it will take a horse with fair early speed and strong finishing powers to beat The Ace in the hole. The ace in the hole is the greatest "mystery" rider on the continent, will pilot Mrs. Webster's colt in the $200,000-added event Saturday.

Wood, under contract to ride for W. L. Brown, Maryland breeder, has been named to ride the gelding, which has gone so far as to defeat his ex-protector, come fourth for the chance. He arrived last Friday.

Southworth Explains Change

Cardinals Rolling Now

Just Because They're Mad

NEW YORK, May 22.—(AP)—St. Louis Cardinals are rolling now and the reason is that they are fighting mad.

"I found out I was killing the boys with kindness and encouragement," Billy Southworth, their little, usually good-humored manager said today.

"The boys thought they were being hard, but they weren't. They were just going out there and taking their ease. They couldn't get any steam up, but I sure began to boil and finally I let go."

"It was up at the Polo Grounds Sunday," the skipper went on as he paraded up and down his hotel room to get more freedom for his gestures. "The Giants had old Curt Hubbell on the mound and for the first time in a long while, I saw this ball club he lashed the whole team against us. They scored four runs in the first inning and the only score we made was a home run—and by a left-handed batter."

"So in the second game they scored four more runs in the first inning and, boy, I could feel the seat getting hot right under me. I couldn't sit any longer, and I got up and marched up and down that dugout for the rest of the game giving a continuous lecture."

"I saved some of my best language for the players coming in off the field at the end of every inning and I want to tell you I worked up a lather. I have done some good, too, because we won that game 8-0 and now we have won four in a row."

"We've just started to roll and we're going to keep on because we're through being a satisfied ball club. We're going to work and battle every step of the way to the last day of the season and if we aren't on top then, we at least will know we have done our best."

Along about this point Southworth said he had no objection to discussing the National League outlook with customary managerial calm.

"Brooklyn has a good team. You can't take anything away from those Dodgers, because they're winning and they'll be tough."

"We're a game behind, but I don't think the race will be one-sided. I am sure we will win it if we don't get a game or two off."

"I'm not possible for us to make a scrap of it."

Four Club Loop Again This Year

Edmonton's four-team junior baseball league will pry the lid off for the season at 3 p.m. next Monday afternoon at Renfrew Park.

The same quartet of clubs which comprised last year's snappy junior loop are back again in the field—Canadians, Cubs, Maple Leafs and Henry Singer's.

With a successful first year's experience to guide them, the league officials are looking forward to another good season. They are confident that the fans will be offered a good brand of baseball.

Last year's champion Canadian Athletic Club entry are reported to be just as strong as ever and in fact Coach Joe Shandro says he has a better balanced team than the 1941 edition. Geoff Fox is managing the boys and doing a good job of it.

The Cubs, who last year were handled by John Ducey, are numbered to be the team to beat this season. Bill McKinnon, their new manager, is quite optimistic over his squad's chances and says his chief worry is that he has so many good pitchers he don't know which ones to give the call to.

The Cubs are also considerably strengthened both in the infield and the outfield. Coach McKinnon has been assisting in the coaching duties.

The Maple Leaf Athletic Club entry is understood to also have a good club. That organization—whether it be in football, hockey or baseball always can be counted upon to produce an eight-man team.

Henry Singer's team, managed by Henry White, is doing the managing and Jim McAlister in the role of coach. The team will be in there all right.

It was Henry Singer's club which gave away and their chief position coming down the stretch last season, and the Cubs are expected to do the same this year.

Up to last night no decision had been made as to which two of the teams will perform on opening day.

Manning Depot took over undisputed possession of the second slot in the Men's Senior Softball League standings by edging out the Moose at Kingsway Park Thursday night.

The game was just about the best played in the men's loop this season, there being plenty of smart fielding and both chuckers were decidedly adverse to allowing the opposition any hits.

Graphic Story Of Escape From Besieged Singapore Is Told Thursday By Visitor To Edmonton

By SHIRLEY C. WEIR

AMONG the unsung heroes of this war are the countless refugees who have been forced to flee from their war-torn countries, leaving behind them their homes and entire worldly belongings. The role of refugee is a hard and lonely one, that must be played with indomitable courage. It is just such a role that has, of necessity, been assumed by Mrs. R. Hunter who, with her small son Rodney, fled from Singapore

Fleeing in a car before the planes of the Japanese and finding herself the machine gun target of one determined pursuit plane... reaching Singapore and having to wait for a sailing while nightly Jap raiders dropped bombs on the city... saying goodbye to stricken friends and taking what few of her belongings she could manage, and sailing for foreign shores... such is the story Mrs. Hunter told in an interview on Thursday.

Mrs. Hunter does not bewail her misfortune, it is only a fleeting experience, she said, and in her dark eyes that reflects the suffering and unhappiness she has known.
